The parable in the Training Publications, pg. 113, addresses the relationship with God and one another. It highlights the fleeting nature of earthly wealth in comparison to spiritual well-being. Our focus should not be on temporal wealth, but rather on our relationship with God. The parable is a challenge to reassess our priorities in life.

The parable challenges a reassessment of true security. A rich man placed all his security in earthly wealth and work. He questions the value of someone who offers a sober evaluation of life and work. He questions the value of someone working so hard to acquire a fortune that on death will go to an idle, lazy person. Trust should be placed in what matters.

Paul answers a question raised by the First Reading. Ultimately, our priorities should be placed in what matters. We are called to a life with Christ in God for eternity.

Jesus’ parable challenges a reassessment of true security. A rich man placed all his security in amassing an ever larger fortune. He dies suddenly and “things you have prepared, to whom will they belong?” The lesson of the parable is that we should place our security in our relationship with God rather than on earthly wealth.

Another dimension to this parable emerges from its context. The parable is given in response to the question shouted from the crowd: “Teacher tell my brother to work. He questions the value of someone working so hard to acquire a fortune that on death will go to an idle, lazy person. Trust should be placed in what matters.

How does the parable in the Gospel challenge us to see our relationship with new eyes?

Stewardship Reflection
Jesus uses the parable in today’s Gospel to help us realign our values. Society defines “success” as an accumulation of material possessions. Jesus calls us to serve others through the faithful management of all our God-given gifts. What path will we take to accumulate God’s gifts? What will be “our inheritance” to leave to those in need?

As Christians, we are called to express our gratitude and love for God fulfilling our obligation to return to God the fruits of the gifts we have received. Do you serve others in a spirit of love and gratitude?
